Production Is the Answer

Pro-rating Belongs to Europe

None of the newspapers have much use for Harold Ickes, Mr. Roosevelt's Secretary of the Interior, because of his chronic inability to get along with anybody, anywhere, at any time — and I imagine the people will have even less use for him than the newspapers have if the "trial balloon" which he floated yesterday regarding curtailment of steel and electricity and gasoline for civilian uses is actually ordered into full effect.

Americans are pretty generally united on foreign policy—but there may have to be some drastic changes in the administration's domestic policies if our country is to get into production on the basis necessary to carry out the promises we have now given to Great Britain.

For more than 10 years our country has been thinking and talking in terms of social welfare work, and not in terms of mechanical production.

And the net result of such thinking is that when an emergency finally arrives we are told by high officials that this, the richest and most powerful nation in the world, is short on production of such vital factors as steel, electricity, and gasoline—and is admittedly short on skilled labor.

To the extent that governmental policy has encouraged such shortage in the past because of emphasis on social welfare work, to this extent governmental policy must be reversed from here on out.

Anyone who attempts to quarrel with their view ought to look up history and re-discover for himself the unalterable fact that war and all the preparations that go into war are anti-social in their nature.

National Defense is a fact, not a theory—a deed, not a book.

And at this stage of the National Defense preparation, when Secretary Ickes is complaining that the civilian life of America must be stripped because there aren't enough basic supplies for both the military and civilians, we are reminded that the United States Chamber of Commerce pointed out earlier this spring that there is an alternate plan for handling this emergency.

Instead of regulating traffic on the existing "single-line industrial railroad" to suit military needs, why not build up a "double-track" industrial machine that will take care of both?

This can't be done in a day. But it is something the people of a nation with the resources that America has will sooner or later demand of its government.

It will take a bold man and a sure hand to cut through the knot that lobbies have tied around the national capital—but once the knot has been cut loose production will increase according to our needs, both military and civilian.

Pro-rating policies are all right in pauper Europe—but America's answer to an emergency has always been production, and more production.

The Desert Six Inches Away

In the time of our Revolutionary ancestors, the desert was nine inches away from the United States. Today it is only six inches away.

That is the dramatic and startling method taken by the National Wild Life Federation to call attention to the dangers of soil erosion. What the federation means is, of course, that there once was an average of nine inches of top soil spread over the whole United States. The cutting and burning off of the forest cover has resulted in such a washing away of that topsoil that now it averages only six inches in depth.

If that, too, is allowed to wash away, the United States would be a desert, like the vast deserts of China. How long would it take if the present rate of washing away of the precious soil continues without interruption? Fifty years is one rather alarming estimate. Fifty years seems even closer than six inches.

Probably in no period has so much progress been made in the fight against soil erosion as in the past 10 years. Millions of trees have been planted, thousands of check-dams have been built to stop gullying. The beginnings of a tree shelter belt against wind erosion dot the prairies.

It is only a beginning. The task of conserving our soil is basic. If the soil goes, from which alone man is now able to get a living, all else is in vain. So all plans aimed at this vital form of conservation are worth study, every action.

The Wild Life Federation is primarily interested, of course, in the restoration of those wild animals which are rapidly disappearing. It lists more than 40 species which are either extinct or are rapidly disappearing. Those who are uninterested in hunting, fishing, or natural history may be indifferent.

But soil conservation and wild life go together. The game disappears, not so much because it has been killed off as because the forest cover is cut away and the streams polluted. It will reappear naturally when the surroundings in which it thrives are made to reappear.

Thus the two problems are one, because it is restoration of this forest cover, and clearing up of muddy and polluted streams, that lessen the erosion that robs us of our soil.

This is another American heritage that must not be lost while we are intent even on more immediate things.

British Trap Italian Forces

Ethiopian Troops Are Led by British Officers

LONDON —(AP)— Italian forces at Gondar, a pocket of Italian resistance in northwest Ethiopia, have been hemmed in by the Fascist withdrawal from Debarech, on a road 50 miles to the north, authorized British sources said Friday.

British forces moving against the Italian forces in sector north of Lake Tana are composed of Ethiopian troops commanded by British officers, was announced.

At the beleaguered British-held port of Tobruk on the North African front British forces were said to have made a thrust at the Axis end in the western perimeter of the Libyan port defenses.

Knudsen had endorsed a suggestion that $200,000 of national defense funds be allocated to permit immediate construction of 80 miles of co-operatively owned electric transmission lines in Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Senator Spencer made public a letter from the Office Production Management official approving the suggestion.

Merchantman With German Passengers Captured

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad—(AP)— Intercepted at sea by a British cruiser while passengers celebrated with champagne their expected arrival at Martinique, the 8,379-ton French merchant ship Winipeg was in Port of Spain Friday and hundreds of German passengers have been interned.

Two American-born passengers told how scores of Germans bound for Martinique threw hundreds of papers and pamphlets into the ocean after the cruiser had fired shots across the ship's bow and escorted her to Trinidad.

First Italian Plane Reported in Iraq

The report said RAF planes shot down three Italian planes Thursday near Kahanuqa which British ground forces are reported to have occupied.

British Draw Nearer Baghdad

Late Report Says Forces Within 5-Miles of City

LONDON —(AP)— Authoritative sources reported Friday that British forces had driven to a point within five miles of the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

The column was advancing from the west after capturing the town of Khanuqa, fall of which was announced Thursday.

Though impeded by extensive rains and damage to a bridge on the path of the advance the British apparently covered 15 miles in the past 24 hours.

The anti-British Premier, Rashid Ali al Gailani, has fled into Iran, taking with him 6-year-old King Feisal the Second, it was reported.

Artificial Fog Laid Down by German Planes

Death of British Commander on Crete in Plane Crash Reported

BULLETINS

NEW YORK —(AP)— British forces and Greeks are fleeing before the German conquest of Crete and are now attempting to reach Egypt aboard fishing boats in "another Dunkerque," the German radio said Friday.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Withdrawal of British women and children was disclosed by the British broadcasting company which said they have arrived at a Mediterranean port Friday "with the first batch of wounded to come from the island of Crete."

By the Associated Press
British defenders of Crete were reported "in full flight" in the 1-day-old struggle Friday and Axis dispatches pictured the Allies as wandering around the island lost and demoralized in an artificial fog laid down by Adolf Hitler's aerial invaders.

Groups of British soldiers were reported stumbling along the rocky southern shores of the island hoping that ships might come to evacuate them. Fishing boats had taken off a few, it was reported.

British Commander Killed
The German radio said a Cairo broadcast announced that Gen. B. C. Freyberg, commander of British imperial forces in Crete, had been killed when his plane crashed en route to Egypt.

Hitler's high command, claiming "decisive victory," asserted "British resistance had collapsed everywhere" in Crete.

British Middle East headquarters acknowledged the Allies had been compelled to reform their lines amid a tempest of Nazi dive-bombing assaults and fierce attacks by new airborne German reinforcements.

The Middle East command said battle-worn British troops "again, exacted a heavy toll from the invaders" but it shed no light on the possibility of surrender or escape.

DNE, official German news agency, said thousands of Allied prisoners had been seized and declared that the battle for the strategic Mediterranean island "has been decided."

The Italian press said surrender of the Allies before daylight was inevitable.

Three Cities Taken

The Germans reported the capture of Retimo, Crete's third largest city, about half-way between Candia and Cania, the capital. Both the latter had previously fallen to Nazi "sky troops."

DNE said 800 British prisoners had been taken at Retimo and that the eastward pursuit of the Allies continued.

Premier Mussolini's high command said Italian bluejackets and soldiers, who belatedly entered the conflict on Wednesday, attacked on the east and captured several hundred prisoners.

The Fascist war bulletin asserted British warships which attempted to prevent the landing of sea-transported Axis reinforcements on Crete were fleeing post-haste toward Alexandria, Egypt, under constant attack by Italian planes.

Civilian Guard Through Nation

Sudden 'Alert' Activity Spreads Through U. S.

By the Associated Press
Military and civilian guards stood watch at defense plants from coast to coast Friday, summoned overnight by civilian authorities, who spoke of sabotage, and military officials, who talked only of a tactical maneuver.

Highlighting the sudden activity from New England to California was the cancellation of 14,000 leaves for soldiers at Fort Dix, N. J., and a "practice alert" at Ft. Custer, Michigan, which was so realistic that officers confessed it fooled them.

The War Department at Washington said it had issued no instruction of any kind to lead to precautions such as reported. It said it knew nothing of the activities at the two camps and said commanders may order "alert" maneuvers at any time.

Anti-aircraft guns were planted atop California plane factories. Los Angeles harbor ships were floodlighted and western patriotic bodies were asked to stand by.

Japs Threaten Dutch Indies; True to Axis

Matsuoka Reaffirms Japanese Adherence to Rome-Berlin Pact

TOKYO —(AP)— Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, reaffirming Japan's adherence to the three-power pact, declared at a press conference Friday that she might have to reconsider her "peaceful policy" toward the South Seas.

Informed quarters interpreted this part of Matsuoka's statement as a direct warning to the Netherlands-East Indies in view of the current deadlock in economic talks.

"As frequently has been affirmed," Matsuoka told Japanese reporters, "Japan's policy toward the South Seas is peaceful."

"Should, however, untoward international developments render execution of such policy impossible it is a possibility that Japan may have to reconsider her attitude in the light of the changed situation."

George W. Stratton has a Blenheim II-sired colt at Hollywood Park that is almost a dead ringer for Whirlaway. Same dark chestnut color, blaze face and markings and long tail.

The Circle S candidate's name is Sir Blenheim and he has twice visited the winner's circle. He prevailed at third asking last summer at Hollywood Park, rambling five furlongs in 1:00 1-5 and captured a six-furlong event last fall in 1:12 3-5. Last summer as a juvenile he worked five-eighths in 59 flat. He's been away from the races since last autumn and was spared from racing as an early 3-year-old in order to allow him to gain maturity.

Sir Blenheim was purchased as a yearling from John B. Hertz for $20,000. He is out of Ann Gowdy, a High Time mare, while his grand dam is the illustrious Anita Peabody.

Sir Blenheim goes in the $25,000 Hollywood Derby, July 12, so probably will tackle his half brother.

Whirlaway has been nominated for both the Derby and the $75,000 Hollywood Gold Cup, July 19.

"Sir Blenheim isn't as screwy as Whirlaway," asserts Owner Stratton. "In fact, he's the only sane one of Blenheim II's first crop."

What the Circle S proprietor should say is that he wishes Sir Blenheim was as crazy like Whirlaway.

Lucky Charley Howard ran completely out of luck when his stable tackled Whirlaway, first Porter's Cap twice and then the big one, Midland.

And Ben Jones evidently intends to have Whirlaway trail Charles Sea-

Lindbergh Raps FDR's Address

Speaks of 'Consequences That Will Follow' Intervention

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh told a rally against war here Thursday night that if American attempts to follow the policy suggested by President Roosevelt Tuesday night "we will start a war between the hemispheres that may last for generations."

Replying directly to the president's fireside chat, Lindbergh declared: "Our own president says that the safety of America lies in controlling the Cape Verde islands off the coast of Africa. Even Hitler never made a statement like that."

"Mr. Roosevelt claims that Hitler desires to dominate the world. But it is Mr. Roosevelt himself who advocates world domination when he says that it is our business to control the wars of Europe and Asia, and that we in America must dominate islands lying off the African coast."

Broadcasting locally over WFIL and over loudspeakers in the street outside the Arena, Lindbergh opposed "our intervention in this war" and said "if we, as a free and democratic people, can study this record of intervention and still permit our government to take us into war, then I believe we deserve the consequences that will follow."

Huge Italian Transport Sunk

17,879-Tonner Destroyed by Torpedo, Rome Admits

ROME—(AP)—The 17,879-ton Italian liner Conte Rosso, laden with troops, has been sunk by a torpedo south of Syracuse, Sicily, but most soldiers aboard were saved, the Italian high command said Friday.

On the other side of the ledger, the high command said, the 1,340-ton British destroyer Hereward had been blown up by bombs dropped by Italian planes. The daily war bulletin said 229 members of the crew had been rescued, including 26 seriously wounded.

The 19-year-old Conte Rosso, traveling in convoy when she went down, apparently was transporting troop reinforcements to Italian garrisons in North Africa, since the newspaper Il Popolo di Roma said fresh manpower was being conveyed across the Mediterranean by the Italian navy.

Reports now are coming in about people getting hit by golf balls. They shouldn't thrust themselves into the foreground.

Deny Death of Max Schmeling

Ex-Champion in Hospital Mildly Ill, Say Germans

BERLIN—(AP)—Max Schmeling's own words were quoted in the German press Friday to relate his part in the Nazi invasion of Crete after reports that he had been killed were officially spiked.

An interview with the former heavy weight champion by Siegfried Kappe, a German Luftwaffe reporter, told how Schmeling had wandered alone half a day in the Crete wilderness after becoming separated from his companions, then rejoined them and helped capture a strategic coastal road.

The official denial of Schmeling's death said he was in an air force hospital with minor attack of a tropical disease.

SERIAL STORY

THREE TO MAKE READY

BY W. H. PEARS

YESTERDAY: Kilo faces the bombing, explains the blame, but Bill Jenks counters all her sayings. As the boys start to storm the barn, Paul was in the approaching. Perhaps Dr. Lud has gone for help.

VICTORY FOR CARDMAN

CHAPTER XVI
IN relays now, the boys were throwing hard young shoulders against the sagging door. But equally solid League shoulders were holding it from within. The night was filled with the impact, the grunts, the exchanged challenges of the two groups.

It was like a game, Paula thought, a hard-fought game with enmity forgotten in the thrill of the struggle. But once the door fell, everything would change.

"They're coming," Kilo gasped. The door, ripped from its hinges, was being pushed inward like a shield.

Then a lumbering figure ran swiftly past Paula, and a voice like a big bass horn bellowed above the tumult.

"STOP!"

HAL BASCOMB swung his flashlight away from the door, and two beams of light crossed like rapiers.

"Dr. Van Horn!"

"Stay where you are, all of you!" The tone of Van Horn's command suggested past Army training. He stepped over the splintered door and stood in the entrance of the barn. "Bascomb, since you seem to be in command of this expedition, I shall hold you responsible for anyone who follows me into the barn."

He was inside but a few minutes, emerging just as Lud barked: "Dr. Van Horn, the light! Over here."

The president's flashlight swung to the fleeing figure of Bill Jenks. Cutting in from an angle, Lud brought him down with a flying tackle that elicited a gasp of admiration from the boys.

Van Horn said with quiet irony, "Surely, Mr. Jenks, you wouldn't leave without a complete story?"

He turned to Bascomb. "Bring your boys inside. We can settle matters right here in this barn."

THE two groups of students filled the barn. They were packed in so tightly that the shoulders of League and fraternity members brushed. But there was no hostility now; the attention of both factions was commanded by the powerful personality of Dr. Van Horn.

"No speech," he said, "with a smile. 'I'll save it for Com-

Soldiers' Recreation Drive Planned Next Week

Cultivation of Kudzu Advised

Important Program to Be Aided by Alton CCC

Cultivation of kudzu set out this spring is one of the most important requirements for its survival and growth, according to Hodge B. Vineyard, Jr., soil conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service in the Alton CCC Camp area near Hope.

Unless clean cultivation is given, competition for moisture by other types of vegetation growing along the rows will seriously retard its growth the first year, Mr. Vineyard adds.

If necessary, weeds and grass should be hoed out of rows and sufficient plowing should be done along the rows to control other vegetation, to keep the soil well broken and to keep the vines dragged back to a relatively narrow strip along each row. By cultivating in the same direction each time, there is less danger of breaking the vines.

Besides controlling weeds and grass, the practice of clean cultivation will keep the soil in good shape and will permit vines to take root at the nodes, or joints, and develop new crowns until there are enough plants to spread like a huge green net over eroding fields. Soil thrown on runners by the plow also induces root formation.

Before a kudzu field may be used for pasture, there must be many more rooted plants than were originally set out. These new plants will develop of their own accord, if the soil is cultivated during the first year. However, these new plants come from the joints, which cannot root unless they come in contact with moist cultivated ground.

Many farmers plant a cultivated crop in the middle between the rows of kudzu the first year. Cultivation of this crop will control weeds and grass and keep the soil in good condition for the establishment of kudzu plants.

The use of kudzu is one of many practices used in conservation of the soil.

WE, THE WOMEN

Tips for Girls Stuck in City During Summer

By RUTH MILLETT
Summer in a city isn't so bad for a working girl if hostesses consider her the ideal "extra girl" for their week-end parties.

The girl a hostess thinks of immediately when she asks herself "What girl can I have for that new young man in John's office?" is the one who remembers that:

A hostess expects a woman guest to look attractive, not just when she arrives, but all week-end. That means having the right clothes for whatever sports or entertainment is planned.

A hostess expects a woman guest to be a good listener so the men can shine, instead of doing most of the talking herself.

A hostess expects a woman guest to stay behind the closed door of her own room when she has cold cream on her face, curlers in her hair, and when she decides to change her nail polish.

A hostess expects a woman guest to pay enough attention to her husband so that he won't ask, "Why did you ask HER?" but not enough so that the hostess wonders, "Why did I ask HER?"

A hostess expects a woman guest who collects all the men present and leaves the other women to get along as best they can.

A hostess expects a woman guest to let the men impress her with how much they know, instead of trying to impress them with what a smart business woman she is.

A hostess can forgive a woman guest a lot if the guest builds up the hostess in private, but in the hearing of the hostess's husband, just say something like "Tom Moore is a great admirer of yours" will set everything right, providing the husband hears the comment and Tom Moore is attractive or important enough to matter.

'Road to Zanzibar', Top Comedy of Year, Comes to the Saenger

Hope, Lamour Crosby Star in New Production

History Reveals Bing Crosby Gave Up Law for Melody, Comedy

Top-flight radio and movie star, comedian, race-horse owner, manager of the lightweight fighter, song publisher and proprietor of a records business—that's Harry Lillis Crosby, better known to us all as Bing Crosby. Preoccupied with his duties of entertaining people week after week on the radio, and frequently appearing in motion pictures, Bing still finds time for his hobbies and outside business ventures.

Bing, who stars with Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour in Paramount's new comedy, "Road to Zanzibar," opening Sunday at the Saenger theater, despite his many duties, has become one of Hollywood's best amateur golfers. A consistent companion on the links with him is Bob Hope.

Bing was born in Tacoma, Wash., but when he was very young the family moved to Spokane, Wash., where he received his education in the Washington public school and Gonzaga University. Bing enrolled at the university to study law, but gave it up when he decided he could make a better living by singing. The entire college was enthusiastic about Bing's singing.

With another student, Al Rinker, Bing organized a seven-piece band. Bing played the traps and sang with Rinker. Soon they were playing engagements at many college dances, and one day a local theater manager booked them into his theater. Their success convinced Bing and Al they were right in giving up their study of law. Rinker's sister was Mildred Bailey, the radio singer, and off to Hollywood the boys went to ask her if she could help them get bookings.

Miss Bailey did help them, and soon the boys were singing in the Tent Cafe, owned by Abe Lyman's brother, Mike. Then followed a Pacific coast vaudeville tour, which culminated in their being hired by Paul Whiteman as vocalists with the band. A third vocalist joined them, and thus was the famous Rhythm Boys started. When the Rhythm Boys returned to Hollywood with Whiteman, who was making "The King of Jazz," Bing decided to stay. Bing soon was making a name for himself as a soloist. By leaps and bounds he became famous and in demand everywhere. "Road to Zanzibar" is his twenty-fourth full length picture.

Christianity Rose From Sinful City to Spread Throughout the World
Text: Acts 11:19-30

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

This lesson on "broadening Christianity" is sub-titled "The Antioch Movement," and the topic for intermediate and senior study is entitled "A Nickname Becomes Honorable."

The new disciples of Jesus were called "Christians" first in Antioch. Some comment upon this seems fitting. There were in the ancient world 16 cities known to have been founded under the name of Antioch by Hellenistic monarchs and there were at least 12 other cities named Antioch. Of all these, the most important was Antioch in Syria, the Antioch of our lesson. It was about 300 miles north of Jerusalem, situated on the River Orontes about 20 miles from the coast. On the great lines of trade between West and East, it was a very important and flourishing city.

Some conception of its physical grandeur may be had by reference to its colonnaded streets. It is said that on one such street a person could walk five miles with protection from the weather. It would be worthwhile for anyone to read the story and description of Antioch in any good encyclopedia or Bible dictionary.

This city of such outward grandeur and proportions was a city of paradox. The moral corruption of its people beneath the grandeur and the seeming culture was such that when a Roman orator deplored the moral decay of Rome, he did so by saying that "the Orientals had overflowed the Tiber."

Surely this was a strange place for the progressive movement of Christianity to take its rise. The beliefs, character, and ideals of these early Christians were so much at variance with the life of the prosperous and licentious city that not only was the contrast so extreme, but it seemed incredible that so small a group, probably called Christians as a nickname or term of reproach, could presume to attain any supremacy. Yet, the great city on the Orontes is a thing of the past, centuries ago gone down in ruin, while the Christianity that the little group represented, coming from Jerusalem and taking hold in Antioch, has spread and taken root in every part of the world.

Yet, the more one thinks of it, Antioch was a fitting place for Christianity to assume its new missionary beginning; for it was the purpose of Christianity to conquer sin and licentiousness, to take root in an evil world and grow, conquering the evil.

Associated with this city of Antioch is the first missionary journey of Paul and Barnabas. When the disciples at Jerusalem heard how deeply the new faith had taken hold at Antioch, they sent Barnabas, a good man and true, as their representative to this new Christian community. Barnabas went to Tarsus, where he found Saul, the new convert, henceforth known as Paul, and from Antioch these two men stretched out through Asia Minor in their first missionary journey.

I would advise anyone who would intelligently follow the story in the Acts of the Apostles to do so with a map of this region in the time of Paul, tracing upon the map the journey from place to place. If one will take a Bible dictionary and look up each of these places as he reads, he will find this first great missionary journey assuming all its spiritual interest and all its remarkable character as a Christian adventure.

Publications Point Way to Terracing

Agricultural Engineer Is Co-Author of Both Bulletins

FORT WORTH, Texas—Two new publications, written especially for the Southern farmer, point the way to the proper methods of terrace construction and terrace maintenance. Louis P. Merrill, regional conservator of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, announced Wednesday.

These publications are titled "Terrace Construction with Small Equipment in the South" and "Plowing for Terrace Maintenance in the South." Phil M. Price, agricultural engineer who is a member of the Soil Conservation Service regional staff, is co-author of both bulletins. He collaborated in the preparation of the terrace construction publication with W. A. Weld, associate agricultural engineer, and in the preparation of the maintenance bulletin with John M. Downing, agricultural engineer, both of the Soil Conservation Service.

The authors emphasize that terraces form only a part of a well-planned soil conservation program and that supporting practices, such as soil-improving rotations, strip cropping, cover crops, and contour tillage, should be employed to the fullest extent possible on terraced fields.

Each publication contains a large number of photographs and drawings designed to simplify both terrace construction and terrace maintenance. The use of a five plow and Fresno, the plow and the v-drag, the one-way disk tiller, and the small-blade terracer is explained in the terrace construction bulletin. In the maintenance publication, the one-land and the two-land methods of terrace maintenance are discussed and illustrated. There also is a discussion of plowing terraced fields.

"Terracing is now accepted as an effective measure of soil defense for most of the sloping cropland in the South," Price and Downing wrote. "It is folly, however, to build terraces and not maintain them. The effectiveness of even well-constructed terraces depends on their being properly maintained and farmed after construction. The regular tillage operations on terraced fields should reconduction the terraces as well as prepare the land for crops. Terrace maintenance then becomes an integral part of field culture and not a separate or extra practice."

Copies of either or both publications may be obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, Western Gulf Region, Fort Worth, Texas.

SAN FRANCISCO — Sixty Holstein-Friesian cattle, auctioned off here reportedly at the highest average price obtained anywhere in the United States in the last ten years, give testimony to the slaughter of herds and critical economic conditions in Europe.

Holsteins come from the Netherlands, where their origin has been traced back to the dawn of the Christian era. Transplanted to the United States in Civil War days after several unsuccessful attempts, they now account for about 60 per cent of the milk produced in the leading dairy states.

The San Francisco sale and show was staged by civic bodies, with the realization that wide distribution of high-grade animals for breeding was of special importance now. Representatives of Canada and Latin American countries participated. Average price was $439.
